

Halo

Monday, 31 January 2011 19:50

Just a quick post while we're home for lunch. This is what I saw when I walked around the side of my office building on my way to meet Rob. We've been seeing lots of sundogs the last little while but to see the full circle is rare. Can you see the little white flecks near the top of the picture - those are ice crystals. The air is sparkly today.
