I said I finished a pair of socks while we were on vacation and these are they. I made them from a skein of yarn I got with my sock club discount last year. I loved the look of it on the Blue Moon website and really wanted to see how it would look knit up. I toyed with the idea of making ribbed socks instead of plain but decided to just keep things simple. This was vacation knitting after all. It took me about a week to finish these - plane and ferry rides provide loads of extra knitting time - and got to take my pictures of them at my grandmother's house just before we headed out for a walk.
