

I spent a lovely chunk of yesterday afternoon working on one of my dresses. It's the dress I was planning to make in April so even though it is now June and I haven't yet sewn together my dress for March I'm calling it April's dress. When it's all done it will be a Mendocino sundress . It was going pretty quickly yesterday (especially with my chosen hem style) but sadly I ran out of my top thread a third of the way through the bodice gathers and need to get a new spool. I was supposed to do that after work today but completely forgot and got milk instead (we needed milk too). I think I'll email myself a reminder to receive when I get to work tomorrow morning.

Pink in Progress

Tuesday, 07 June 2011 04:14

