

I was uploading last week's pictures off my camera this evening and thought I'd share this little guy. The noise from my camera disturbed him a bit at first but all he did was yawn and settle into a new position. He stayed like this until the sun left his spot.